

SIENA RESTAURANT

Providence, Rhode Island

CLIENT:

Anthony and Chris Tarro
Owners/Managers
Providence, Rhode Island

PROJECT SCOPE:

Duplicating the feel of Tuscany in Providence, which required extensive and detailed custom millwork as well as expanding the existing hallway to create a more open and inviting back room.

CHALLENGE:

The Tarro family has deep roots in the Italian-American community on Federal Hill. Siena evolved out of Anthony's ardor for Tuscan cuisine which is fresh, simple and unfettered. Time spent in Italy has had a significant impact on Anthony and Chris. The traditions of Tuscany have forever changed their conception of the art of the meal. The idea of translating these traditions to a modern American setting seemed very exciting to both, hence Siena's "Tuscan Soul Food" was born.

COBALT ADVANTAGE:

Working closely with the Tarro brothers and Judd Brown Design, Cobalt Construction brought the unique construction plans to life. A fun and contemporary interpretation of Tuscan architecture, Siena is thriving in the heart of an active and cultural restaurant district of Providence.
